“ It's hard to put into words what my uncle meant to our family. He had a heart of gold and a sense of humor that could light up any room. I'll never forget him being up on our roof helping us replace it —a true testament to his character, considering how much he hated heights! He always put family first. I'm so grateful for the lifetime of memories we shared, especially our last Christmas together and that final Kings game. I'll miss him every time I hear 'Who Let the Dogs Out.' Rest easy, Uncle Charlie.
